TRANSPOSITIONAL CHARACTERISTICS OF INTERJECTIONS IN BULGARIAN AND CZECH

This research is focused on the syntactic positions of Bulgarian and Czech interjections. It is known that, from a syntactic point of view, one of the major features of interjections is that they occur completely independently and on their own intonation contour. However, like most word classes, they are subject to syntactic uses other than their primary nature. Another interesting issue is related to the most active type of interjections from a syntactic point of view. To this end, this article aims to generally outline, compare and analyze the transpositional characteristics of Bulgarian and Czech interjections.
